Verdict of the Coroner's Jury in the Tipperary Murder Case.

Farragut's Reception at Constantinople.

Large Fury Meeting in London.

BY OCEAN TELEGRAPH.

PRESENT OF THE CONDITION OF THE CITY OF LONDON, AT MIDNIGHT, AUGUST 17.

LONDON, August 17.

Last Saturday afternoon a coroner's jury sat upon the body of Scholin, murdered by tenants in Tipperary on the 2d inst., returning a verdict of wilful murder against the persons charged with the crime. The jury however, in a recommendation, expressed the opinion that the evidence was not sufficient to warrant the arrest of any one, and suggested the appointment of a commission to investigate the matter. Fifty-four persons have been arrested in connection with the murder.

Further Particulars Concerning the Horrible Ku-Klux Murders at Franklin, Tenn.—Indignation of the Whole Community Rising.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

NASHVILLE, August 17.

As I supposed, the first account of the horrible murders at Franklin, which I telegraphed you last night, were in some respects inaccurate, although in the main correct. I have since been enabled to get the facts from reliable sources, and only some twenty-four or thirty of the murders have been committed. Colonel Lyon's force is estimated at 200 to 400 strong, are said to have been disguised, and are supposed to belong to the Ku-Klux Klan.

The name of the white Lan killed was A.A. Mitchell, Sheriff of Williamson County, Franklin is the county town. Although at present under the control of the military, it is a very quiet place. Of all persons now known to be murdered, only one was killed in the town, the remainder being shot in the woods on Saturday night. The latter were all negroes, and were killed because they had been active in the organization of the Loyal League. The murders were committed by disguised men, who rode up to the houses of the victims, called them out, and shot them down in the presence of their families. The wives of the murdered men say that they recognized the voices of several of the murderers as those of men who had been in the habit of visiting their husbands for the purpose of organizing the League. The murders were all committed between the hours of 10 o'clock on Saturday night and 3 o'clock on Sunday morning. The coroner's jury, which investigated the matter, found that the murders were committed by persons unknown to the jury. Not a single arrest has been made, and the murderers are still at large. The greatest excitement prevails throughout the community, and the people are determined to ferret out the murderers and bring them to justice. Governor Brownlow has issued a proclamation offering a reward of $1,000 for the arrest and conviction of each of the murderers.

Governor Brownlow, in a letter to Colonel Lyon, says: "I am informed that you have been in the county of Williamson for some days, and that you have not yet arrested a single person charged with the murder of the negroes in that county. I am informed that you have not even visited the scene of the murders, and that you have not even offered a reward for the apprehension of the murderers. I am informed that you have not even offered a reward for the apprehension of the murderers. I am informed that you have not even offered a reward for the apprehension of the murderers. I am informed

BUILDING.

Notes from Some of Our Leading Architects.

What will be Accomplished During the Season.

Eight Thousand Buildings, Costing $12,000,000, in Course of Erection.

Detailed Descriptions of Some of the Principal Structures.

Five Thousand Brick Dwellings, Fifteen Factories, Twelve Churches, and Other Buildings.

Building Material and Real Estate.

Novelties are the attainments and pleasure of a city so constantly expansive that in its architecture it is found to be necessary to change the style of the stately edifice, and that of the humble cottage, by a people. It is in the style and manner of the structures we see erected around us that the progress and growth of a city is manifested. The year 1885 is destined to be one in the history of Chicago's growth and development that will be remarkable for the failure of the harvest, and financial prosperity. It has given a new impetus to the building interests of the city, and will be the means of placing it on a more substantial basis, and to create still another era in the records of its progress.

The season of 1885 was as unfavorable one for the prospects of building. The spring was unusually rainy and tardy, and this caused the delay of many contracts to get started. Then the eight-hour struggle began, and for weeks confusion, delaying business, whereby the city's progress, adding to and rendering less its prosperity all. When that had ceased in the season was already far advanced, and many had given up the idea of building this year. Still there were erected during the season between 4,000 and 5,000 structures, at a cost of from $7,000,000 to $8,000,000.

Rarely had the present season opened that the real estate speculation spread as extensively as it has within the last few months. During the previous year, now advanced, some steadily and rapidly. Still there was a rocky current, and disastrous wrecks were made, and many a disabled boat of any distinct type. As soon as the season had arrived it became apparent at once that building material had increased daily, and manufacturing for demand not in a proportionate degree. Lumber, brick, stone, and all building material were firmly maintained. Of brick, for instance, there was a supply equal to the demand, but it was not in excess of it, as it should be for building, and any actions have been carried on from the commencement on a scale

[illegible]

Herewith is given a list of over three hundred of the principal buildings of this season, with a brief description of each. Many of them are of the finest, the leading architects in the city. It is to certain that less than $4,000,000 will be expended in the erection of structures of a character that will be creditable to the city, and the remainder will be of the class of buildings that will be necessary for the accommodation of the steadily increasing population, and the manufacturing industries of the city and manner of construction. Already [illegible] are in course of construction, and the [illegible] will be pushed forward by a corps of [illegible] men that will be employed. Of brick, for instance, there was a supply equal to the demand, but it was not in excess of it, as it should be for building, and any actions have been carried on from the commencement on a scale

[illegible]

In addition to the list of over three hundred buildings given below, there will be erected a large number of cottages, flats, and dwellings, the details of which it is impossible to obtain. The following is a list of those ordered by the architects mentioned:

Mr. O. C. Kinney is the architect. The plans for one and one-half story frame cottage, on Lake avenue, near Fifty-first street, for Mr. Wm. Hall.

Mr. Frank Lloyd is the architect of the following: Two-story and basement brick dwelling, with stone trimmings, on Ellis avenue, near Thirty-fifth street, for Mr. Ellis.
